DEDICATION

Mrs. Iuliano's patience and dedication are well known; her remarkable talent for working with students and her belief in the worth of every child have made her a shining example of what good student-teacher relations should be. She is a source of inspiration to teachers and the trusted confidante of her students.

In her many years of teaching English, Mrs. Iuliano has always proved to be sincere and interested in her students. She has learned to work with them to help them develop their talents and to set worthwhile goals for themselves.

Mrs. Iuliano can always be counted upon to lend a helping hand, to provide a word of encouragement whenever needed, or to give of her time so that a student may better understand himself or an English assignment. She cultivates the young mind as tenderly as she might her most prized plant, and seldom, if ever, has Mrs. Iuliano been known to lose her temper or use a harsh word when dealing with students, though she will admit now and then she does come across a real rascal.

It is, therefore, with tremendous pride, respect, and appreciation that we, the class of June 1968, dedicate this yearbook to Mrs. Agostina Iuliano.

The Class of June 1968

CPJHS

NEWARK, N.J.

PREFACE

This semester's Yearbook has for its theme a setting of African art, a reflection of the ethnic background of the Negro people and a reminder to all of their contributions to a great nation and to the world—a nation and a world that have been enriched by the literary efforts of such men as Douglass, Johnson, Baldwin, Lomax, and Hughes—a world that has benefitted from the knowledge of such men as Drs. Daniel H. Williams and Charles R. Drew in the field of medicine. Dr. Daniel H. Williams received world recognition as the first man to successfully perform heart surgery; Dr. Drew added to these achievements in the field of hematology.

The humanitarian efforts of Ralph J. Bunche add to the scope of Negro achievements in politics and world affairs for which he was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize.

Other men such as Crispus Attucks, Matthew Henson and Congressman Arthur Mitchell helped to mold and shape the destiny of young America.

Scores of Negroes have lent their talents and dedication to forming a richer and more beautiful America. Negroes continue to make contributions on all fronts—in the fields of education, science, politics, sports, entertainment, and throughout the realm of human endeavor.

All of this is a part of the American heritage, of which all Americans can be proud.

This school is dedicated to the development of the youth who attend here, that they may grow in knowledge and understanding That they may build a better nation in a better world.

IN APPRECIATION:

Although Mrs. D'Alessandro will not be present at our graduation, we know that her heart and thoughts will always be at Clinton Place. After thirty-five years of teaching and administration, she will be away enjoying a well-earned rest—a rest that, we hope, will be as abundantly rewarding as the many benefits that she has bestowed upon Clinton Place and the number of students who have attended here.

We gratefully take this opportunity to express our appreciation to her for her steadfast concern for the students of Clinton Place and to wish her a healthful and pleasant leave of absence.

ADMINISTRATION

Congratulations to the class of June, 1968. Many of you have been with us since the 7th grade; others entered as 8th and even 9th graders. Yet your teachers, counselors, and class advisors have been able to mold you into a single unit - the proud graduating class of 1968 of Clinton Place Junior High School.

I am sure you have been bombarded with advice to stay in school; get at least a high school diploma. You hear it from parents, teachers, counselors, and from spot announcements on radio and television. One of the simplest and most effective is "Out of school, out of work, out of luck." Without training, the future is bleak indeed. At age 14 or 15 you are at a critical point in your careers. Many leave or are asked to leave school at age 16.

I hope you will have the courage to stick it out when things get difficult, and, to take advantage of the many opportunities school and community agencies offer to assist you.

Opportunities are increasing every day for those who are prepared. There is no reason to be "out of school, out of work, out of luck".

My best wishes to all of you for a happy life.

Anthony G. Coppola
Principal

Mr. Anthony Fiordaliso

THE IMPOSSIBLE DREAM

Congratulations to each and every one of you for taking your second step toward "the impossible dream". Your dreams of the future are no longer impossible, as they would have been if you were born fifty years ago. Now, you can truly fulfill your "impossible dream" by climbing the ladder of education on your way to the "unreachable stars".

Others have fought the "unbeatable foe" of prejudice for many years now. You must beat this "unbeatable foe" by proving your worth through educational achievement. Stay in school; take advantage of every educational opportunity and fill yourself with as much knowledge as possible. This can be done; this must be done; and I know you will be the ones to do it.

May God grant you the courage, the wisdom, and the fortitude to fulfill your "impossible dream".

Sincerely,

ANTHONY FIORDALISO
Acting Vice-Principal

Dear Graduates:

As you leave Clinton Place a great challenge awaits you—the elimination of war and violence as a way of solving mankind's problems. If this is not accomplished, man may not survive on this planet.

The way to meet this challenge is to bring about social and economic justice for all men. This is the cause for which Dr. Martin Luther King gave his life. It is from his example that we learn what it takes to meet this challenge. It takes intelligence and sensitivity.

Whatever you do, don't stop learning. But let your learning be more than book learning. Learn about yourself first. What is it that you really want to do with your life? What are your weaknesses and strengths? Self-knowledge is the beginning of wisdom, and wise men are what the world needs most.

Learn about others, also. Be sensitive to other people's ideas and feelings. Most important of all, never try to resolve your differences with others through violence. Remember that the greatest apostle of non-violence in this country was Martin Luther King—don't let his cause die with him.

Intelligence and sensitivity are the qualities needed in our citizens and leaders. The struggle against poverty and prejudice is sorely in need of good leadership. Will you accept the challenge? The whole world is waiting. I wish you success!

Sincerely,

ALMA MATER

Nestled in Newark on a busy street,
Stands a school that can't be beat.
Clinton Place the name rings loud
Among the students who are so proud.

Beautiful things all make our school,
One huge diamond a precious jewel.
We're thankful for this place to learn
For in our heart great pride will burn.

Chorus
Clinton Place, Oh Clinton Place,
Your banners raised on high,
We sing to you a song of praise;
Your name will never die.

CLASS HISTORY

If for no other reason, this year will be remembered for the number of changes that took place at Clinton Place; the most significant being Mrs. D'Alessandro's going on leave, followed by the fact that we all miss her. The school, however, was left in good hands and continued to function. Mr. Coppola assumed the role of principal, joined by Mr. Testa and Mr. Fiordaliso, acting vice-principals. With three such capable men at the stern, certain changes were inevitable. Already we have begun to notice them.

It was a year in which we saw many of our favorite teachers leave, with new faces replacing them—teachers who, we are sure, will hold a special place in the hearts of future Clinton Place students.

The year will also be remembered for the number of special events that took place: the hilarious presentation of "Die Fledermaus", the emotion-filled performance of "Carmen", coupled with the awesome splendor of the Metropolitan; and, of course, the unforgettably scintillating, folksy comedy of Pearl Bailey in "Hello, Dolly!" Perhaps a star will yet be born here.

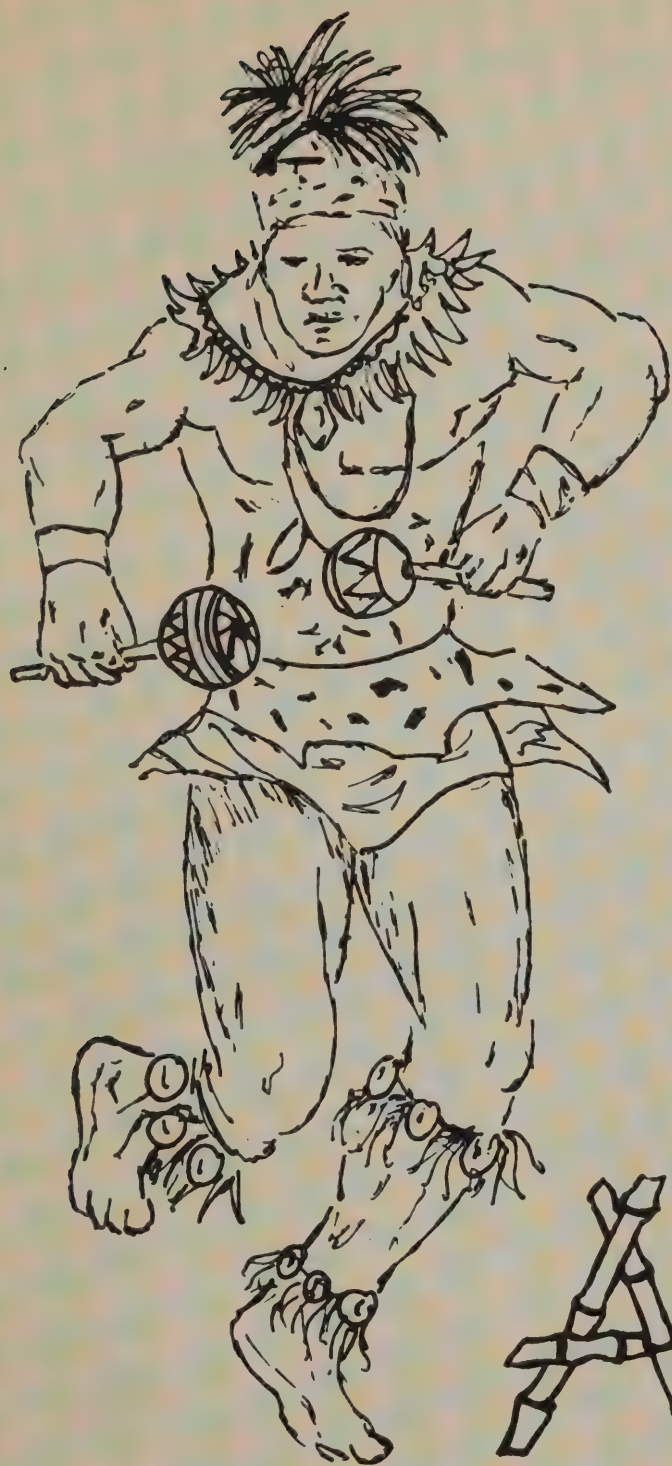

But how many of us remember that very first, bright, Wednesday morning, the sun shining, our faces scrubbed clean, we, dressed in our Sunday-best, and our hearts filled with the excitement of entering Clinton Place Junior High School.

Remember how we searched in vain for the elevators in this great big, modern school and found nothing but a maze of classrooms that all looked the same?

It wasn't long though before the cloud of confusion lifted and we found ourselves bumping into Mrs. D'Alessandro and backing up from Mrs. Hall, not to mention Mrs. Jones—Mrs. Lillian Jones that is. Boy, how the teachers piled on the books and homework. Before long, the first exams were facing us, and then more hard work. How we were relieved to see the summer.

CLASS HISTORY

Following the summer, we returned to a somewhat different building. The ninth graders were gone and the new sevens seemed so small. Just imagine! We were now full fledged eighth graders—that is, most of us were. We still lacked, however, the sophistication of the ninth graders and that is perhaps why we still looked up to them, seeing ourselves one day in that exalted position. Ninth graders returned our adulation by referring to us as “eighth grade saps”. That was a wonderful year, though, especially working on the many activities.

Again summer vacation finally arrived, and we had a chance to split the scene. The year had truly got the best of us. But it wasn't long before those old school bells were ringing again and we were returning to school to see old friends and teachers. Somehow things hadn't changed. To our amazement, even as ninth graders, we had to work, in fact, even harder than before. Why didn't someone tell us that French and Spanish were so difficult or that passing algebra was just impossible.

This was our great year! Mr. McNeill, with his new job in Title I, almost went crazy trying to help us organize our yearbook and arrange the business of Title I at the same time. We did all we could to help and we really did profit from the experience.

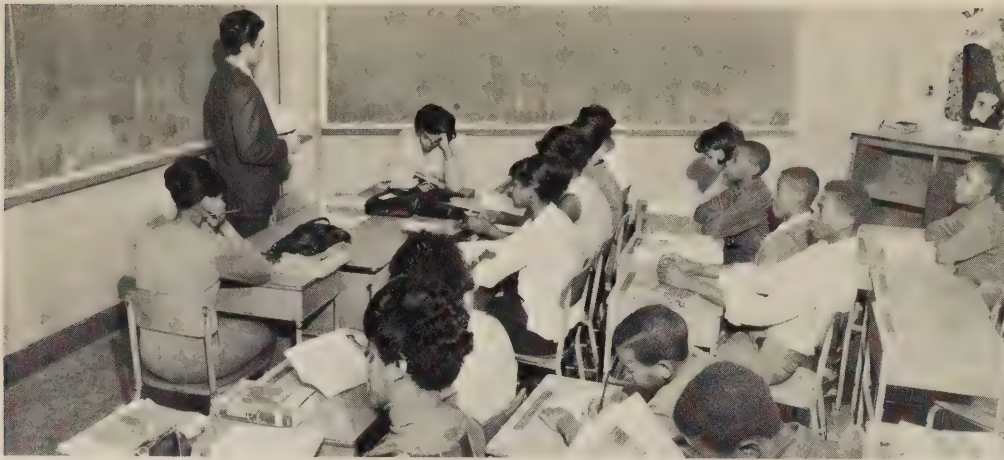

This was also an election year. President Johnson had his problems, but so too did many ninth graders, not all of which were political.

As the three years ebbed to a close, we counted the days to graduation. Spirits were high, but marks were low. We laid plans for graduation nevertheless. Pictures had to be taken; dues had to be paid, officers elected, popularity polls completed—yes, sir, business was the order of the day. Pay up or else!

Our class rings finally arrived. All the teachers were surprised to see so many hands in the air. The reason was obvious.

In spite of all the work on the newspaper, the yearbook, the popularity poll, and the election, we did manage to find time to get in some studying and perhaps for the first time we looked seriously toward the future.

Soon our school life will end at Clinton Place; we have already begun to feel the pangs of leaving. Though we are leaving, we have already prepared a special place in our hearts for C.P.J.H. Now, we must bid her farewell.
